the primary goal of world civilizations is to present a truly global history one that both discusses the development of the world s leading civilizations and also emphasizes the major stages in the interactions among different peoples and societies world civilizations examines all the world s civilizations including those in the western tradition but also those civilizations sometimes neglected in world history texts for example the nomadic societies of asia latin america and the nations and states of the pacific rim

World Civilizations balances this discussion of independent developments in all the world's major civilizations with comparative analysis of the results of international contact. World Civilizations organizes its presentation of global history into six coherent time periods with each period defined by the new and parallel patterns that evolved among all or most civilizations during the particular era. The six periods correspond to the six parts of the book. Within each part, the authors identify specific themes that characterize common experiences or common forces in individual societies as well as the new kinds and patterns of global contacts that emerged during the era. Thus, for example, Part I of the book discusses the developmental stage of world history including the rise of agriculture and the development of civilization. Part II examines the classical era in global history, an era marked by the integration of large regions and diverse groups of people through overarching cultural and political systems. Subsequent parts of the book continue the emphasis on geographic shifts and the intensification of contact among civilizations.

This book presents the first comprehensive overview of the Black Sea region in the prehistoric period. The Black Sea is a key transitional zone between Europe, Central Asia, and the Near East, which has long been divided by politics, language, and traditional boundaries of scholarly disciplines. This book cuts across disciplines and combines sources published in Eastern European languages with Western scholarly literature to give the Black Sea its rightful place in contemporary archaeological discourse.

School textbooks in Iran, Saudi Arabia, Egypt, and elsewhere in the Arab and Muslim worlds are filled with anti-Western and anti-Israel propaganda. Most readers will be shocked to discover that history and geography textbooks widely used in America's elementary and secondary classrooms contain some of the very same inaccuracies about Jews, Judaism, and Israel. Did you know that there is no record of any important Jewish contribution to the sciences? World Civilizations, Thomson Wadsworth, or that Christianity was started by a young Palestinian named Jesus? The World Scott Foresman Pearson supplemental materials and other classroom influences are even worse. The Trouble with Textbooks exposes the poor scholarship and untruths in textbooks about Jews and Israel. The problems uncovered in this ground-breaking analysis are instructive and illustrate the need for reform in the way textbooks are developed, written, marketed, and distributed. Substitute another area: how we teach American history, Western civilization, or comparative religion, and we have another equally intriguing case study. The Trouble with Textbooks shows what can go terribly wrong in discussing religion geography culture or history and in this case all of them the trouble with textbooks tells a cautionary tale for all readers whatever their background of how textbooks that americans depend on to infuse young people with the values for good citizenship and to help acculturate students into the multicultural salad that is american life instead disparage some groups and teach historical distortions with millions of young people using these textbooks each year the denigration of some should be a concern for all designed for introductory level survey courses in world history the primary goal of world civilizations is to present a truly global history from the development of agriculture and herding to the present using a unique periodization this book divides the main periods of human history according to changes in the nature and extent of global contacts this global world history text emphasizes the major stages in the interactions among different peoples and societies while at the same time assessing the development of major societies encompassing social and cultural as well as political and economic history the book examines key civilizations in world history world civilizations balances this discussion of independent developments in the world s major civilizations with comparative analysis of the results of global contact
